New City Council Term Should Focus on Climate Action

Windsor – The Citizens Environment Alliance (CEA) is advising that the new term of Windsor City Council should focus on climate action. The CEA has produced a Greener Windsor guide to help council and citizens focus on the need for climate mitigation and resilience. The guide will be updated during the term of this council.

“We have wasted so many years through inaction and now climate warming has reached a crisis. Municipalities like Windsor must stop wasting time and raising excuses for their slow response”, said Derek Coronado, Coordinator of the CEA.

Although the Greener Windsor guide focuses on climate action and resilience it also links issues of climate accountability such as funding and social equity. These issues all form the framework for municipal climate accountability as outlined in the Municipal Climate Accountability Handbook, published in 2021.

The Greener Windsor guide highlights eight issues to help the City ensure prompt climate action and stronger climate resilience.
